SHE A HEROINE, TOO.

Landlord Geo. H. Ruddy, of the Keystone hotel, Joplin, tells a story about the bride of Admiral Dewey. A number of years ago Mrs. W. B. Hazen and her husband, the late Gen. Hazen, arrived in Baxter Springs on their way to Fort Gibson, I. T. Gen. Hazen was on a tour of inspection of the army posts in the west and his wife accompanied him.

In those days Baxter Springs was a booming town of 8,000 to 10,000 population. Mr. Ruddy kept the Bateman house, and Gen. and Mrs. Hazen were his guests. One night "it came on to blow," and the old residents, seeing the peculiar black clouds, began to fear a tornado. Many sought shelter in cellars. About 9 o'clock the storm broke with extreme violence, and, although it did not prove to be a genuine twister, much of the country around Baxter was laid waste. In the town a church and several other buildings were unroofed.

In the Hotel Bateman all was confusion and alarm. At the height of the storm Gen. Hazen was in his Call and see him and get prices, which are the lowest.

The News is in receipt of a copy of The American Banker, which contains a full report of the proceedings of the Kansas Bankers Convention, which was held in Fort Scott. The response to the address of welcome was delivered by J. N. McDonald, cashier of The Traders Bank of this city. Mr. McDonald also read a paper entitled "Branch Banks," which was well received by the convention. The meeting, which was the twelfth annual, was one of the most successful and enthusiastic ever held.

room and Mrs. Hazen was in the parlor. Suddenly the window of the General's room blew in, and the General, thinking that half the house had blown away, attempted to open the door leading into the parlor to go to his wife's assistance. But the pressure of the wind against the door was so great that he could not budge it. The walls began to tremble, and in this extremity the General called for help.

At this moment the sound of music was heard coming from the parlor, and the half-distracted guests who came tumbling down stairs were amazed to see Mrs. Hazen sitting at the piano playing a spirited quickstep. The sight of the girl's figure at the piano playing away with a smiling face and the air of happy indifference to danger soon restored courage to the other guests. Throughout the storm the brave little woman kept up the spirits of the guests by rendering a variety of gay and inspiring music. Landlord Ruddy declares that it was a performance worthy to rank with Admiral Dewey's daring entrance into Manila bay.
